

Breaking Moscow Charter

On a routine trip in the Spring of 2019, Silicon Valley exec Hanna Arnol has to close a software deal. Yeah, it is in Moscow. Still, she doesn't expect to end up at the center of an industrial espionage plot she overhears at a Starbucks there. Someone from the Valley will fork over critical AI software for a pile of money.

With FBI assistance, Hanna sets out across Europe and Silicon Valley to thwart the scheme that would undermine American AI leadership. The nefarious web weaves in Russian oligarchs, an ex-mafia guy, an American businessman, and several murders.

In the world of deceit and danger, as Hanna relentlessly hunts for the espionage target and the purchaser, she discovers the stakes are much higher than just AI software. Much higher.

Espionage, love, betrayal, and evolving tech are actors in this thriller. Will Hanna crack this international crime?
